

Ensnconced amidst Singapore's lively Orchard and Scotts Road, the Goodwood Park Hotel stands as a testament to the city's storied past. Born as an elite club in 1900, this architectural gem has welcomed a constellation of stars, with luminaries like Duke Ellington and Elizabeth Taylor once walking its halls. For the epicurean traveller, the hotel boasts a plethora of dining options: the tantalizing Sichuan and Cantonese dishes at Min Jiang, the sophisticated European plates at Gordon Grill, and the exquisite English Afternoon Tea Buffet with Local Favourites at L'Espresso.

Marrying colonial grandeur with contemporary elegance, the Goodwood Park Hotel offers guests more than just a stay. It presents a voyage through time, allowing visitors to relish in Singapore's harmonious blend of history and the present. In our eyes, the Goodwood Park Hotel is an undisputed gem in the heart of Singapore, waiting to be discovered by discerning travellers.

Heritage icon and urban sanctuary for a resort-style experience in the city

Built in 1900, Goodwood Park Hotel is Singapore's iconic heritage hotel, with its impressive Grand Tower gazetted a national monument in 1989.

Uniquely sited on a landscaped hillock in the shopping and lifestyle hub of Orchard and Scotts Road, the Hotel has 233 elegantly appointed guest rooms with contemporary amenities, two swimming pools, fitness centre, five distinctive restaurants and a deli. A unique resort-style experience awaits in this urban sanctuary steeped in old-world charm.
